

How do I respond to the blog?

Monday, 12 November 2007

Last Updated Friday, 18 April 2008

We welcome your comments. To comment on Dr. Jacobs' Blog, you will have to become a "Member". Membership is Free!

To do this:

- On the left side of the screen go to the very bottom and select "Register". This will open a registration page.
- Complete all the information and select 'Send Registration'.
- Read and follow the directions on the next page to activate your new account.
- On the next page, you will see:

"Your account has been created and an activation link has been sent to the e-mail address you entered. Note that you must activate the account by clicking on the activation link when you get the e-mail before you can login. "

Welcome to New Passages Website Membership!

- Once you click on the activation link, go back to <http://www.newpassages.org/> and click on the Blog again.
- Then click on "respond", you should be able to type your comments at that point.
- When you are ready to submit, click on the SAVE icon that looks like a floppy disc.
- We review submissions (to watch for objectionable content) prior to them posting so it may be a day before the general public will be able to view your posting. Please be patient.
- If you are still having problems, please email our website administrator at dhawkins@newpassages.org and explain your issues.

NOTE: We will not sell or share your email address to others.